

Resources for Implementation

What do Growth Mindset Feedback and Questions Sound Like?

Suggestion: Cut out each bookmark and laminate; use as a mobile instructional tool.

Growing Your Brain
Learning helps your brain grow.                      You're growing your brain.                      You can grow your smarts.                      You can grow your intelligence.                      Your brain grows when you try to do something that's a little hard instead of something easy.                      Your brain grows when you keep trying.	Your brain grows when you work hard.                      Your brain grows when you practice.                      Your brain grows every time you try to solve a problem.                      Your brain grows when you learn from your mistake.                      Your brain grows when you learn something new.                      Let's make some neurons.
Learning Something New
Let's practice.                      Your practice is paying off.                      You're learning something new.                      Thank you for asking that question.                      Asking questions helps you learn something new?                      Learning something new helps your brain grow and get stronger.                      Practice helps you learn something new.	Hard work helps you learn something new.                      I can see you're really having fun learning about _____.                      What do you want to practice today?                      What do you want to learn today?                      What did you learn today?                      How can you remember _____?                      How does it feel to learn _____?
Learning to Problem Solve
Looks/sounds like it's problem solving time.                      You're a problem solver.                      You're being flexible. You're going with the flow.                      Hey, you let that little problem go.                      Thank you for asking for help.                      You asked your friend for help.                      Let's try and solve this together.                      Let's do it together.                      Let's problem solve this.                      You tried to solve the problem.	You tried a few ways to solve that problem.                      You just solved that problem and your brain got stronger.                      Solving problems helps your brain grow and get stronger.                      How did you solve your problem?                      How can we solve this problem?                      How can I help?                      How does it feel to work through this problem?                      How does it feel to solve that problem?